

February 14, 2018

Love to the Rescue: Anne Arundel first responders, adoptable pets ready to be your Valentine

If you're looking for love, Anne Arundel County Police headquarters is a one stop shop. Some of the force's most eligible bachelors and bachelorettes work right next door to Animal Control, where pets are waiting for loving homes.

Whether you're interested in finding a partner or a pet this Valentine's Day, you're going to love this.

Monica Hanner, 35, is a dispatcher who lives in Annapolis.

Cody is an 8 year-old chihuahua with an unforgettable smile. He was born with cleft palate, which he's having surgery to fix this week. He wants someone who will support him in sickness and health, and who will love him for more than his good looks.

Adrienne Johnson, 32, is a communications dispatch supervisor from Annapolis. She loves cooking, travel and wine tastings.

Beth is a five ear-old pit bull terrier mix. A staff and volunteer, favorite Beth needs to lose some weight but would love to be someone's couch potato. She's always down to Netflix and chill.

Officer Elijah Moore, 30, lives in Linthicum and loves rom-coms. His favorite is the 1998 classic "You've Got Mail" starring Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan.

Chief is a five and a half year-old pitbull terrier mix. His family broke up with him because they couldn't keep him in their new home. His vision is a little fuzzy, but that doesn't hold him back from being energetic and outgoing.

Sergeant Jackie Davis, 34, loves the outdoors. She lives in Pasadena with her husky and shepherd. She's holding Star, a three year-old guinea pig.

Officer Kevin Falkler, 24, lives in Severna Park. He's a movie buff, loves watching baseball and football and loves to travel.

Jak is a seven year-old pitbull terrier mix. He's a calm and happy boy who loves attention.

Olivia Thomas, 67, is a dispatcher who lives in Millersville. She loves to paint, read and hike. She's holding Sydney, is a 7 year-old Himalayan mix cat.

Officer Rodney Wotring, 26, lives in Pasadena with his French bulldog, Moe. He loves long walks on the beach and is “single and ready to mingle.”

Peaches is a two to three year-old pitbull terrier mix who is happy to sit and give paw for attention.

Officer Michael “Mickey” Latta, 28, lives in Pasadena with his German shepherd, Loki.

He loves boating, hiking and doing anything outdoors. “Step Brothers” is his favorite movie. He’s holding Prince, a one and a half year-old pitbull terrier mix. They just became best friends.

Carole Phipps, 62, works at Animal Control and lives in Davidsonville with her dog and two cats. She loves her 5 year-old granddaughter and ice cream.

Princess is a one and a half year-old domestic shorthair cat. She came to Animal Control last week with her 9 week old kittens. Her kittens have all been adopted, but Princess is still waiting to make her love connection.

For the full article click here <http://www.capitalgazette.com/news/ac-cn-love-rescue-20180213-story.html#nws=true>